Write NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS for each answer.

Archaeology Course

- Can be combined with any other subject except 21
- Has three 22 modules in first semester

Module 1

Title: 23

Lecturer: Dr Morris

Learning method: Lectures and practical sessions

Content: Based on processes

- recording
- 24
- interpretation
- display

Assessment: By 25

Module 2

Title: 26

Lecturer: Prof. Elliot

Content: 27 and development of built environments

Assessment: By 28 examination

Module 3

Title: Method and Science

Lecturer: Dr Thompson

Content: Standard techniques in fieldwork and analysis

Learning method: 50% lab work, 50% 29

Site survey at end of module (the 30 is to be announced later)

SECTION 4

Questions 31 – 40

Questions 31 – 33

Choose the correct letter, A, B or C.

- 31 What impact does Marc Prensky believe that digital technology has had on young people?
- A It has altered their thinking patterns.
 - B It has harmed their physical development.
 - C It has limited their brain capacity.
- 32 'Digital immigrants' tend to access computers
- A using their native language.
 - B less efficiently than young people.
 - C for less important information.
- 33 What example is given of having a 'digital accent'?
- A having less effective typing skills
 - B doing things the old-fashioned way
 - C being unable to understand instructions

Questions 34 – 40

Which theorist makes each of the following points?

Write the correct letter, A, B or C, next to questions 34-40.

Points made

Wildlife Conservation Society Good afternoon. Can I help you?

4

Speaker 4

1:57

Oh, hello. Yes, I'd like to join, please.

3

Speaker 3

2:01

Oh, yes, certainly. I just get some details from you. Could I have your name?

2:07

Michael Jones.

2

Speaker 2

2:12

the caller's name is Michael Jones. So Michael Jones has been written in the space. Now we shall begin. You should answer the questions as you listen. Because you will not hear the recording a second time. Listen carefully and answer questions one to six.

Wildlife Conservation Society. Good afternoon. Can I help you?

4

Speaker 4

2:39

Oh, hello. Yes, I'd like to join, please.

3

Speaker 3

2:44

Oh, yes, certainly. I just get some details from you. Could I have your name? Michael Jones. Right. And can I ask where you heard about us? Was it in an advert? Or did a friend tell you? Or neither? Actually, it was a radio program. Then I just got your number from the phonebook.

4

Speaker 4

2:59

3

Speaker 3

3:05

Oh, right. At no, I need some membership details. It's Michael Jones and the address

4

Speaker 4

3:13

21 Beale Street. Okay. Leads.

3

Speaker 3

3:18

Fine. And do you know your postcode?

4

Speaker 4

3:22

Yes, it's L S 14 to J W.

3

Speaker 3

3:29

Okay. And do you have a daytime telephone number we can contact you on?

4

Speaker 4

3:34

Yes, you can call me at work the numbers? Oh, double 17358642. And I can give you my office email address if you like.

3:48

That'd probably be useful. Yes, please.

4

Speaker 4

3:51

It's m j@hennings.co.uk.

3

Speaker 3

3:59

Is that H E double n i n g s?

4:03

That's right.

3

Speaker 3

4:05

Thank you. Now I just need to ask you some questions about exactly what you want. First of all, how long do you want the membership for? We do two, three and five year memberships. And we also do one for life.

4

Speaker 4

4:20

I think I'll just get the minimum length this time around.

3

Speaker 3

4:24

Fine. And then the type of membership we do single joint or family which covers up to four children.

4

Speaker 4

4:31

Well, we haven't got any children. But I think I'll get the joint one because my wife will probably want to do the activities with me.

3

Speaker 3

4:39

Yes, fine. Let me see. That'll be 49 pounds all together then please

2

Speaker 2

5:54

can you make it the 15th instead?

3

Speaker 3

5:58

No problem. The membership will begin then to is that alright? That's fine. I just give you a reference number in case there's any problem. Have you got a pen? Yes. It's J Y, Zed, three, seven. And we'll be sending you an information pack within a few days. Is there anything else?

4

Speaker 4

6:18

Oh, yes. Could you send me an additional one? I've got a friend who's very interested.

3

Speaker 3

6:24

Certainly no problem. I'll make a note of that. There's also a video we can send you if you like there's no charge. Yes, please.

6:31

That'll be great.

2

Speaker 2

6:35

That is the end of section one. You now have half a minute to check your answers. Now turn to section two. On page three.

7:20

Section two,

2

Speaker 2

7:22

you will hear a woman talking on a radio program about a festival that is about to take place. First, you have some time to look at questions 11 to 18 on page three. Now listen carefully and answer questions 11 to 18.

5

Speaker 5

8:13

I have in the studio with me Mary Smith from Yorktown tourism, who is here to tell us about some of the events happening in our state capitol over the next three weeks at the Spring Festival. So Mary, what can we expect to see?

6

Speaker 6

8:27

Well, it's such an exciting time to be in Yorktown to kick off the Spring Festival. There'll be a huge firework display down by the lake starting at 9pm. This Saturday, the fourth of September, over 10,000 fireworks will be set off all choreographed to music and broadcast simultaneously here on radio your key. You should get there early if you want to get close to the action. So bring along a picnic and a blanket as it could get chilly in the evening. One of the things that attracts visitors to the festival from all over the country is the amazing collection of flowers on show in Central Park throughout the festival. Special buses will run from the town center to the show at 20 minute intervals. For those of you who prefer to take public transport. If you're interested in seeing the latest in cars, from the fastest to the most expensive, then head over to the motor show at the exhibition center from the 10th to the 15th of September. It'll be open daily from 9am until 10pm So you can even pop there after work. Do you like photography, then go along to grow your imagination and exhibition of photographs of famous Gardens, which will be held at the Art Gallery from the 11th to the 19th of September. Come and be inspired by some have the world's most beautiful gardens. I've had a sneak preview of some of the photographs, and they are magnificent. If music is more your scene, then you should come and hear the Australian Philharmonic Orchestra performing swing in spring at the concert hall on Friday, the 17th and Saturday the 18th of September. It's a celebration of dance music from the 1940s and 50s. There will be three performances. Both evening start at 7pm and a matinee performance at 230 on the Saturday, so get your dancing shoes on and head there, it's guaranteed to get your feet tapping.

2

Speaker 2

10:45

Before you hear the rest of the program, you have some time to look at questions 19 and 20 on page four. Now listen and answer questions 19 and 20.

6

Speaker 6

11:14

Those are just a few of the attractions on offer. But for something a little different, you could try balloons down under, which is the largest gathering of hot air balloons in the southern hemisphere. It's well worth it. because there'll be over 25 balloons of all shapes and sizes, which is a truly amazing sight. I'm also happy to announce that one lucky person will get the chance to go up in one of these balloons absolutely free. That's the prize in our special spring festival competition. It had normally cost you $200 So it's not a bad prize I I'm sure you all want a chance to win, so you'll need to fill out the entry form. In today's edition of the Yorktown news. Don't forget to include your phone number and send it to radio Yorkie. Make sure your entry reaches us by 5pm on Thursday, the ninth of September. Then to see if you've won, just check out the festivals website on Saturday the 11th of September, where we'll publish the name of the lucky winner. It's such a fantastic prize. So hurry up and get your entry in. So there you have it. Just a few of the special events happening here in Yorktown over the Spring Festival. And if you'd like any more details about the festival that is the end of section two. You now have half a minute to check your answers.

2

Speaker 2

12:47

2

Speaker 2

13:22

Now turn to section three. On page five. Section three, you will hear a student called Paul talking to a tutor about a course he is thinking of doing. First you have some time to look at questions 21 to 25 on page five. Now listen carefully and answer questions 21 to 25.

7

Speaker 7

14:13

Good morning. Come in. You're Paul, are you? Yes, 14:17

I spoke to you on the phone. Yes.

7

Speaker 7

14:19

Have a seat. You wanted to talk to me about the archaeology course?

5

Speaker 5

14:24

Yes, I've read the handbook. But I'd like to find out a few more details before I decide whether to do it.

7

Speaker 7

14:29

Right. Yes. What would you like to know? Well, first of all, can I combine the archaeology course with one in anthropology?

5

Speaker 5

14:33

7

Speaker 7

14:38

Yes, you can combine it with any other subject apart from classical history. That simply because there's some overlap in the lecture times for those two courses. We weren't able to coordinate them.

5

Speaker 5

14:51

Okay, fine. And could you tell me about the modules? Well, in the first semester, there are three all of them are compulsory. We don't offer optional modules till next year, right? The first one focuses on what can be learned from specific artifacts, such as pottery and stone tools. It's called Object matters. And it's taught by Dr. Morris, is that how is the module presented? I mean, is it lectures, we refer to the means of presentation as the learning method. And in this case, its lectures integrated with practical sessions. So it's a mixture.

7

Speaker 7

14:55

5

Speaker 5

15:16

7

Speaker 7

15:21

5

Speaker 5

15:31

What about the content, I suppose we'll be looking at different kinds of archaeological remains, and how to date them and so on, to some extent, but the module is basically about processes. First of all, recording material, then classification, then interpretation of the data. That's how archaeologists draw conclusions about their findings. And finally, display. Is that okay?

7

Speaker 7

15:39

5

Speaker 5

15:58

I think so. Yes, thanks. One other thing? How is the module assessed? Is there an exam?

16:05

No, it's all based on coursework.

2

Speaker 2

16:11

Before you hear the rest of the discussion, you have some time to look at questions 26 to 30 on page six. Now, listen and answer questions 26 to 30. Okay, and the second module, that's the one called towns and cities is taught by our department head, Professor Elliot. And as the name suggests, the modules about the origins of built environments, and how they developed,

7

Speaker 7

16:45

5

Speaker 5

17:01

that's mainly factual and I suppose it is really,

7

Speaker 7

17:06

and for that reason, the assessments by examination, but you may be pleased to know it's an oral rather than a written exam. And it sounds a bit scary. Most of our students find they actually enjoy it, so don't worry too much. Okay. And then the title of the third module is method and science. And in that Dr. Thompson will be introducing you to the standard techniques used in archaeological fieldwork and analysis, things like excavating and dating.

5

Speaker 5

17:36

What about the learning method for this module? Are there any lectures or is it all laboratory work?

7

Speaker 7

17:42

Oh, it's half lab work and half seminars, there aren't any lectures. Then right at the end of the module, you'll take part in a site survey. The date for that is week beginning the 10th of March, but I can't tell you the location yet that will be announced later. But I think you'll find it very useful

18:02

yes or no someone who went on that

2

Speaker 2

18:07

that is the end of section three. You now have half a minute to check your answers.

2

Speaker 2

18:43

Now turn to section four, on page seven section four, you will hear a talk about the effects of our digital world on young people. First, you have some time to look at questions 31 to 40 on pages seven and eight. Now listen carefully, and answer questions 31 to 40.

1

Speaker 1

19:53

In this lecture series, we're looking at changes occurring due to the rapid spread of digital technology in the last decades of the 20th century by digital technology, I include any computer related devices such as email, the internet, cell phones, instant messaging, to name but a few. Today's lecture focuses on the ideas of Marc Prensky and what he believes are the major effects that high exposure to digital technology has had on young people today. Firstly, what exactly does Prensky believe he argues that because today's young people have been born into a digital world, and spend hours simply playing with technology, they've changed in fundamental ways. He believes they're evolving differently, and as a result, process information differently from previous generations. It's even possible that these young people's brains have physically changed. Although whether this is literally true, isn't yet known. Nor does Prensky go quite this far. Prensky divides people into digital natives and digital immigrants. Today's young people are the digital natives. And they belong in this new digital age, because they were born into it and grew up as native speakers of the digital language of computer technology. Whereas digital immigrants are those born in the generations before the digital age. Just as those who learn a second language often retain their foreign accent. The immigrants are usually in varying degrees, not quite as effective at speaking the digital language as the natives are, for example, they're more comfortable finding phone numbers using a phonebook or looking up information in an encyclopedia. Rather than using the internet as a primary source of information. Prensky calls this the digital accent. Another example of the digital accent is scanning a manual for a computer program, rather than assuming the program itself will teach you how to use it. Basically, people with a digital accent have never really stopped relying on their original non digital means of sourcing information. They prefer doing things as they've always done them without typing something into a computer.

1

Speaker 1

22:29

Prensky predicts that due to all these changes are in store, mainly in the area of education. But what do other educators and theorists such as Thomas Allen, Samuel James, and Peter Vander believe, Samuel James from Sydney University agrees with Prensky's predictions. He believes that educators are no longer successful in the way they teach, however, not surprisingly, Prensky has been criticized by more traditional theorists like Peter Vander and Thomas Allen. They disagree with many of Prensky's assertions. Vander argues that a typical classroom is more varied than Prensky believes, with students coming from a range of backgrounds. He maintains that a large percentage of these students are not necessarily proficient with technology. And not all students today fit the one stereotype. And Alan adds that even though most students today have easy access to technology, some just don't find the digital medium appealing. James disagrees, though, he believes that all today's students do share the same basic interest in and knowledge of digital technology. However, James believes our younger students can communicate with their digital immigrant teachers and can still learn using methods which have proven to be successful in the past. James's theories are taken a step further by Allen, who recognizes that both digital immigrants and natives have to deal with vast amounts of information in today's electronic society. Alan maintains that while most young students are proficient in playing computer games and using the web in quite basic ways, they're not used to using the computer at advanced levels. For example, to conduct complex information searches, which are so necessary for university study today. Irrespective of Allen's research, James believes it's possible for computer games to play a major role in making classroom learning more stimulating, and he cites many instances where this would be possible today. However, Vandor asserts that rather than focusing on developing games, we should think of better ways to assist teachers because no computer program comes close to doing what a human teacher does every day.

Speaker 2

25:02

That is the end of section four you now have half a minute to check your answers
